FULL AND FABULOUS! THESE EXTENSIONS GAVE PIPPA'S HAIR ADDED GLAMOUR

Tried & tested Hair extensions

The professionals at Mark Glenn showed us how easy it is to get perfect wedding hair...

We all want a perfect wedding but we don't always have perfect hair. That's why many brides turn to hair extensions for a boost in volume, length or confidence. But, with so many different types on the market, which ones are the best? "Working at Wedding Ideas, I've tried all sorts of hair extensions on behalf of brides," says Ad Manager Pippa. "The problem is, there's always a trade-off – too heavy, too difficult to style, uncomfortable clips." But, after six months of trials, Pippa has finally found the perfect set at Mark Glenn Hair Enhancement (markglenn.com) in London's Mayfair. The UK's largest specialist hair extension studio, this exclusive celebrity haunt is best known for transforming the tresses of the rich and famous. Unlike most salons, they use a beautiful handmade hair rather than the real thing, custom-blending the colour to perfectly match your own. Then, using nothing more than an intricate braiding technique, a team of two works its magic! There's no glue, no bonding, no threads and no clips, so no problem when they are taken out afterwards. The cost is typically between £475 and £600 and, like all extensions, you'll need to remove or replace them after three months. "They're perfect for a wedding," says Pippa. "I feel glamorous and confident, exactly how I would want to feel on the biggest day of my life!"
